— Who is the game for?

Free Realms is designed for everyone young at heart: tweens, teens, and families alike. It's a rich and magical world where even parents are welcome. In fact, you'll want to jump right in and play with your kids!

— How does my child set up an account?

Account set up is a breeze. To create a Child Account, simply go to FreeRealms.com. The first step will be to have your child create his or her Free Realms character. The second step will be to have your child create a Station Account. To create a Station Account, you will need to enter a username and password, country, age and a valid e-mail address. Players must be over 13 to create a Station Account without providing a parent's e-mail.

If your child is under the age of thirteen (13), he or she will be asked to enter a parent's e-mail address. We will send an e-mail notification to the parent's e-mail address provided by your child during registration. Your child will be able to play, subject to certain restrictions. That e-mail will also provide you with the option to unsubscribe and/or disable the account should you so choose.

As a parent, you will have the ability to create a parental password and manage certain game-related features for your child/children.

— What is Quick Chat?

Quick Chat is a version of real-time text conversation that gives the user choices of pre-populated phrases and words. Players with this setting enabled on their account will NOT be able to insert or view any user-generated content and will only be able to select and view text from the list created by Sony Online Entertainment. A parent will have the option to enable Quick Chat on their child's account through the Parental Controls page.
